

I like the no - call list system the way it presently is. There are enough calls where people say they are conducting a "survey" but actually are a way they are using a loophole to telemarket.